APRIL 30, 1878. The Conservative City Executive Committee last night changed the day for the primary election from the 14th to the 10th of May. Mr. Edward Whyte was elected city superintendent in place of Mr. W. B. McIlwaine, resigned, and Mr. James B. Marshall was elected a member of the committee to fill a vacancy from Second Ward. The committee are very reticent as to what transpires in their meetings, which are always held with closed doors, and it is intimated will be even less communicative hereafter. So much secreey causes com-

"The Sun Do Move."

SO SAYS THE REV. JOHN JASPER. About two hundred people assembled in Lincoln Hall last evening to hear Rev. John Jasper, the colored preacher of Richmond, Va., lecture upon "The Rotation of the The entertainment was unique, and greatly enjoyed by the audience, although very few of his hearers gave indications of having been converted to the reverend lecturer's views. Rev. John Jasper is a genuine colored preacher, of the type that makes colored camp-meetings and revivals so interesting to persons used to the formal eloquence and measured prayers of white churchesone of those preachers who have an eloquence and force peculiar to themselves. He is rather tall in stature, with an angular figure, and was dressed last evening in clerical black. A short, erisp, woolly beard covers his black face, and the wool at the top of his head has been worn off with frequent rubbing, so that his forehead seems to extend to the back of his skull. His discourse was full of quaint expressions, and he narrated scenes from the Bible in the vernacular common among the negroes of the South, affording rare entertainment to those of his hearers who have seldom had an opportunity of listening to PLANTATION ELOQUENCE. At times he fell into the sing-song, intonating style of delivery so often heard at negro revival-meetings, and peculiarly noticeable among the colored Baptists. Had he been addressing his own congregation, all the heads and feet would be wagging and bobbing in time with the voice of the

His argument was based entirely on Scriptural quotations to prove that "the sun do move." He began with a reference to Joshua, who commanded the sun to stand still, and then gave other passages from the Bible, in which reference is made to the rising and setting of the sun. He wanted to know if, when anything rose, it did not move. How could the sun rise and go down without moving they could see it with their own eves rising in the east, and then passing over the trees and houses and setting in the west. Yet there are people who say that the sun don't move. After each quotation which he considered a clincher he added, "And yet they say the sun don't move," with an air expressing both pity and contempt for the unbelievers. "What man is thar," he asked, "that lives on God's earth who can take a microscope, or any other scope, and

THE SUN DON'T MOVE?

Whar is he? Whar is the man who can spy from this locality and tell how far the sun is from the earth? He may do it; but, then, I have my convictions, and he has his. Ninety-five millions of miles from the earth," be exclaimed. "Who, in the name of God, can tell that? What can a man look through and look 95,000,000 miles?" He advised his hearers first to "catch hold" of 1,000,000 miles before talking about 95,000,000. His whole discourse was full of interesting and apropos little anecdotes and illustrations. He exhibited a hard-headed and earnest faith in the literal text of the Bible, and said that they could call him a "falsehood" or anything they choose, but they couldn't dispute the Bible. When the audience were dispersing, one gentleman, rising from his sent, asked the lecturer how the sun got back from the west to the east, and he answered them in the words of Solomon, that it "hastens back to the place of rising." Another gentleman asked if the height of a tree could not be measured in any other way except by climbing to the top and using a tape-line, and the lecturer replied that it could not be measured except by using a tape-line or some other instrument. - Washington Republican.

Suicide. - Davenport, Io., April 27 .- A great sensation was produced in this city o-day by the suicide of Mr. Joseph Shields, the well-known proprietor of a large woolen-mill here. He was a brother-in-law of Assistant Postmaster-General Typer, and one of the most prominent business-men and citizens of Davenport. He had lately got into business troubles, which threatened to take from him all his property and homestead, and this was the cause of the rash deed. He cut his throat from ear to ear with a razor, and was found dead in his bed this morning by his daughter. He had $10,000 insurance on his life.
